1.6 African Development Bank: Africa Climate Change Fund

Short Description:

The Africa Climate Change Fund (ACCF) supports African countries in building their resilience to the negative impacts of climate change and transitioning to sustainable low-carbon growth. Established in 2014 as a bilateral thematic trust fund with an initial contribution of EUR 4.725 million from Germany, the ACCF is hosted and managed by the Environment and Climate Change Division of the African Development Bank (AfDB), and implemented in collaboration with other Bank departments.

Following Italy's commitment to the ACCF, the Fund is in the final stages of its conversion to a multi-donor trust fund, with the signature of a new agreement between the Bank, the government of Germany and the government of Italy expected by the end of 2016. Once the conversion is complete, the ACCF plans to launch a new call for proposals in early 2017. Given the strong demand for ACCF resources, the Bank will continue to engage with potential donors with the aim of securing an additional funding commitment.
